

CUPERTINO HISTORICAL SOCIETY + MUSEUM DONOR PRIVACY POLICY

The Cupertino Historical Society, Inc. (CHSM) has depended on the trust and support of its donors and members since 1966 to meet its mission of preserving, interpreting, and sharing Cupertino's rich past for current and future generations. Maintaining and strengthening this trust will always be of utmost importance to the CHSM.

CHSM maintains a database of names and addresses of those persons who have supported us financially. We mail or distribute electronically CHSM publications, invitations, renewal notices, and solicitations to our database in order to inform and to strengthen our financial security.

When donations are made to CHSM on behalf of an individual by a third-party, such as gift memberships, affinity programs, and others, donor information will only be used to process the donation and to service the membership.

The CHSM will not trade, rent, or sell the CHSM donor list to any other organization or individual. This policy applies to donor information received by CHSM electronically, in written format, or by oral communications. We will not send information unrelated to the CHSM to our donors on behalf of other organizations.

The Board of Directors approves any use of the donor list.

DONOR RECOGNITION

CHSM proudly lists the names of contributors in its publications and event programs. Names are listed without any other identifiable personal information and are only listed in categories of giving, renewal status, or in ranges of dollar amounts, not by a specific gift amount. Every donor is given the opportunity to be listed as anonymous.

Any questions about our donor privacy policy should be addressed to Jennifer Furlong, Executive Director at jennifer@cupertinohistoricalsociety.org.
